

Honeycomb Head

Balduina uniflora

This plant is a native member of the sunflower family. The petals are a cheerful yellow, and the center – the honeycomb – is made up of dozens of tiny flowers. It's these flowers that attract native bees and butterflies. In the wild, these plants can cover savannahs by the hundreds!

- Perennial
- Grows 2-3 feet
- Found in moist savannahs, pinelands

Jan	Feb	Mar	Apr	May	June	July	Aug	Sept	Oct	Nov	Dec
-----	-----	-----	-----	-----	------	------	-----	------	-----	-----	-----

Flowering Time